

BASIC COURSE IN JEWELLERY DESIGN

INTRODUCTION

Objective of this course is to equip the students with basic skills to sketch & render Jewellery in an attractive and realistic manner. This will help them in communicating their design ideas and information to the clients, product development departments or artisans.

Basic knowledge about precious metals and their alloy manufacturing techniques, precious gem stones and diamonds, the types of settings along with related information about different jewellery products, terms, Measurements and other specifications provide the student with guidelines about practical aspects of Jewellery.

Knowledge and principals of form development along with the application in Jewellery Product will lead the students to the fundamentals of methodical working and creativity. It also enhances an ability to judge and evaluate any creative work.

This course will help the students in improving constantly on their sensitivity, understanding and manual abilities to become a successful Jewellery Designer.

Duration	30 Sessions
No of seats	10
Eligibility	H S C Knowledge of English and an aptitude for art and design
Fees	Rs.15, 000/- by Demand Draft
Certification	90% attendance and submission of all the exercises and tasks set in the course with satisfactory level is necessary.
Assessment	Only internal grading / assessment will be provided to individuals to gauge the skills acquired by the candidates.
Target group	Jewellers, Students, Craft Persons, Designers, Art lovers, and interested persons.

Course Contents

- Metal and gemstone rendering
- Diamonds and other gemstones
- Precious metals and their alloys
- Product specifications and other parameters
- Jewellery product research
- Various Jewellery manufacturing techniques
- Various stone setting types used in jewellery
- Applied perspective for ring shanks and other products
- Orthographic projections of basic jewellery products
- Modifications of designs
- Design sources